From our Executive Director

Dear Friends,

It's possible that 2022 was the most exciting year Dark Bali has had! Since 2015, we have been building a strong foundation for our coalition by listening well to grassroots organizational leaders who have profound wisdom but are rarely considered in the broader global anti-trafficking space. We trust their insight on both what needs to be done, how to do it, and when it is time. These years of developing relationships with leaders and fostering trust in our community has paid dividends as our programs have moved toward a more mature stage of development, and the impact from them is exactly what we dreamed of seeing:

The government is responding, the public is quickly growing in awareness, and the resources for survivors continue to increase.
The movement that we believed was possible is actually here.

There is still so much to do, but it feels – perhaps for the first time – that we are standing on very solid ground as an organization with a committed monthly Impact Team, fantastic funding partners backing our projects, a clear trajectory moving forward, and the trust of this community of heroes that we are honored to serve.

We are so grateful to each person who has been a part of the birth of this movement, whether your role has been on the frontlines as an anti-trafficking leader or as a donor or a volunteer. It has made all the difference.

Our Model

Coalition Development

Facilitating city/regional anti-trafficking task forces which are connected into one larger Indonesian National Anti-Trafficking Coalition.

Capacity Building

Bringing access to professional training, data, quality resources, and funding to the anti-trafficking community across Indonesia, and representing the deep knowledge of Dark Bali's coalition partners to the global anti-trafficking sector.

Collaboration

Facilitating multi-stakeholder projects with purposeful outcomes among community partners.

Coalition Development

Our role as the facilitating organization of the Indonesian National Anti-Trafficking Coalition is to identify and network existing anti-trafficking organizations, facilitate task force meetings, coordinate projects between organizations and government entities, and connect Indonesian organizations to international networks and resources.

Since 2015, the Dark Bali Coalition has grown from 3 organizations on Bali island to over 50 organizations across the country with the majority being locally led grassroots non-profit organizations.

A strong coalition means:

- Barriers are removed
- Silos are broken down
- Organizations are not isolated
- Stigmas are dealt with (especially for survivors) & survivors become leaders
- There is more engagement between grassroots organizations and government agencies, law enforcement, national and international organizations

BUILDING ANTI-TRAFFICKING TASK FORCES

In 2022, we launched 3 new regional task forces, each with its own local leadership team and set of priorities based on local needs.

Lombok: The Lombok task force consists of a large number of government ministries and social service providers. Since Lombok is a major source of both labor trafficking and child marriage victims (a form of human trafficking), the Lombok task force has focused on prevention.

Bali: The Bali task force is the oldest and most well established, and includes law enforcement, legal aid, and federal ministries. Bali is a destination island for sex trafficking, including child sex trafficking, so most of the organizations in Bali are focused on this issue.

Bandung: The Bandung task force has teamed up with a medical NGO and is using medical clinics as an access point for human trafficking prevention. Many women and girls from Bandung area end up in brothels in Bali and Jakarta.

Jakarta: The Jakarta task force is new and is collecting data so they can determine what resources are available and what gaps exist so that when they begin making decisions about projects, they can do so with clear evidence on what is needed.

Collaboration

Human trafficking is a complicated crime requiring a multitude of criminal actors who groom, recruit, transfer, harbor, and control their victims. The only effective response to trafficking is a network equally as sophisticated and working collaboratively together. By creating pathways for organizations to collaborate on shared projects, we are able to impact human trafficking on a larger scale across Indonesia.

Current Collaborative projects include:

- Safe Migration & Human Trafficking Awareness
- Child Marriage Prevention
- Asia Region Anti-Trafficking Conference Planning Committee

Our Collaboration results in:

- Long-term, sustainable growth in the anti-trafficking movement
- Wider geographic reach
- Efficient use of resources & shared leadership

HUMAN TRAFFICKING PREVENTION PROJECT

Along with 2 coalition partners, Dark Bali worked together with government leaders, administrators from the State University, high school & jr. high leaders, and community activists in the capitol city and multiple villages to launch a human trafficking and child marriage prevention project across the island. A direct result of this pilot project was the launch of the Lombok Task Force. We are thrilled to replicate this training in 3 new parts of Indonesia in 2023.

Capacity Building

With a focus on the larger picture of the entire Indonesian anti-trafficking movement and its place in the global anti-slavery conversation, Dark Bali works to increase the capacity of the organizations within our network and address the information gap between researchers, the public, and the people engaged in anti-trafficking efforts within Indonesia.

Our Capacity Building program facilitates data collection/research efforts, provides professional training, translates quality resources into Indonesian, identifies/addressess pressing needs in the national anti-trafficking response, and facilitates access of Indonesian organizations and leaders into global anti-trafficking spaces.

Current Capacity Building projects include:

- Awareness
- Global Learning Community Equity Partner
- Indonesia focused Data Collection & Research
- Trauma-informed Care Training
- Indonesia Anti-Trafficking Gathering
- Resource Emails & Resource Library
- Professional Development Webinar Series
- Small Capacity Building Grants

Our Capacity Building results in:

- Accessible and usable Indonesian-focused data/research
- Indonesian knowledge is shared globally
- Partner organizations can use data driven strategy to inform programs
- Researchers have access to the grassroots anti-trafficking community
- Better distribution methods of resources
- Increased standards of care
- Accountability and peer support for anti-trafficking professionals

"Thank you to Dark Bali for hosting this very practical capacity building webinar. The clinical psychologists unpacked the importance of self-care in way that compels us to make time for self-care. Not only will we as individuals benefit from it, but those closest to us and our clients."

-Coalition Member Feedback about our "Self-Care & Burnout" Webinar

In partnership with Freedom Collaborative, Dark Bali coalition members contributed over 220 pieces of data to create a map of known human trafficking routes throughout the country as well as the demographics of those victims and the methods used to traffic them. This data is being consolidated into a paper that will be published in 2023 and will be included in wider Asia-region research. This type of novel research is critical to better understanding trafficking in Indonesia so that strategies to disrupt trafficking are data-driven and effective.

INDONESIA ANTI- TRAFFICKING GATHERING 2022

This year we held the inaugural Indonesia Anti-Trafficking Gathering, and it surpassed our wildest expectations! We knew that after 2 long years of COVID-19 restrictions, it was important for the community to meet in person to learn, to discuss future collaborations, develop new relationships, and to be equipped with current issues and leading practices in our sector.

The feedback was so overwhelmingly positive that we immediately adopted the IAT Gathering as an annual project.

There were many important components of the IAT Gathering, but one of the core elements was providing access to counseling for the caregivers in our community. Two clinical psychologists who specialize in secondary trauma joined us and held private therapy sessions for those in our community that wanted to debrief or talk through particular personal struggles. For many, it was the only access to counseling for themselves they have had.

It was an honor to have Shandra Woworuntu as our keynote speaker for the Indonesia Anti-Trafficking Gathering. Shandra, who is a survivor of trafficking from Indonesia to the USA, is internationally recognized as a leader in the anti-trafficking movement, including an appointment by US President Barack Obama to the First U.S. Advisory Council on Human Trafficking to the Presidential Integration Task Force in 2015. She now runs Mentari, a US based anti-trafficking organization, and she is particularly involved in Survivor leadership development and advocacy.

In addition to Shandra, we were pleased to include 2 other Survivor Leaders as speakers and sponsor several others with scholarships for tickets, travel, and accommodations to the Gathering. These survivors were able to network together, and as a direct result the National Indonesian Survivor Council has been established. This community of Indonesian Survivor Leaders is a huge step forward for the national anti-trafficking movement and is a thrilling outcome of the first Indonesian Anti-Trafficking Gathering. Dark Bali is pleased to support, learn from, and collaborate with this group of leaders into the future.

ADAPTABILITY

We are learners in an ever-changing world. Our flexible structure allows us to quickly adjust to our community's needs, addressing the most pressing issues at the moment.

COMMUNITY DRIVEN

Our commitment is foremost to the Indonesian grassroots anti-trafficking community, particularly those with lived experience - to strengthen it, to amplify its voice, and to submit to its leadership.

ETHICAL

We uphold the dignity of all human beings, including our partners, our staff, our donors, and the victims and survivors of human trafficking. For this reason, we commit to holding the highest ethical standards in our communication, our fundraising, our operations, and our advocacy.

CONTEXTUAL

Culture impacts the problems and it informs the solutions. We are dedicated to adapting resources and responses to fit Indonesian culture and to innovating culturally appropriate solutions where there are none.

SIMPLICITY

In order to use our resources effectively, we do what is most strategic and efficient in the most simple, resource-preserving way possible.

Our Financials

As the pandemic restrictions lifted around the world, we were excited to try out new strategies and ideas with our growing community to see what was really answering their needs and making the impact that we wanted to see for a well-resourced, well-connected anti-trafficking coalition. It was an exciting time of project experimentation with several pilot projects, and by the end of the year, it was clear how Dark Bali could best achieve its mission moving forward. We were comfortable closing 2022 with much of our financial resources used in our project explorations because we had also secured 5 new grants for the upcoming year to support those projects that had proven to be so successful.

2022 was a lean year financially, yet we were able to maximize that money to pilot new initiatives and to cultivate many new partnerships to support ongoing projects.
